Two windmills to be built in Daly City

Two windmills, or "wind energy towers," will be built soon in Daly City, amid speculation by some that they will become the city's best-known landmarks and unofficial symbols.

The City Council gave its approval to the two windmills Monday night and wished builder Richard Slater the best of luck with them.

Slater, owner of the McDonald's restaurant at 505 Serramonte Blvd. and co-owner of the McDonald's at 89th Street and Sullivan Avenue, got height variances from the Planning Commission in January for the two 70-foot towers, which he told the council would be used to generate 10 to 15 percent of the electrical energy requirements of the two restaurants.

"This was not an idea out of a party somewhere," he said. It seemed like a very practical idea to him and he investigated. The federal Department of Energy "sent me a lot of paper," but Pacific Gas and Electric Co. referred him to Neil Holbrook of Power Towers in Pleasant Hill, and the result is forthcoming, Slater said.

Two months of wind testing with anamometers showed the idea was feasible at his two locations, Slater went on, noting that 80 percent of all properties are not suitable for windmills. The 70-foot height was decided on as the best to catch the available winds.

The Planning Commission and council imposed 15 conditions, most related to safety and aimed at keeping children from climbing the towers, but specifying also that the towers be kept in use constantly and removed within 30 days if their use as power generators stops.

"This is an experiment," Slater said of the towers, which he asserted would cost $16,000 each. "If they don't work in two or three years, we'll have to take them out."

He said he figured that with the energy cost savings and energy tax credits, the two windmills could pay for themselves in five years.

Councilman James Tucker said he wondered about the effect of the windmills on television reception in their areas. Slater replied that Department of Energy records showed no problems, because if the metal blades to cause TV disruption, they can be replaced with wooden blades.

Noise shouldn't be a problem, because the blades likely will turn at only 85 revolutions per minute, very slow compared to an airplane propeller, which does create much noise of its own because of its speed, Slater indicated. He noted also that the windmills are self-feathering, meaning they will come to a complete stop in winds of 40 mph "so they don't self-destruct."

Mrs. Roseanne Emerson, 594 Gellert Blvd., asked the council if the residents of the Cypress Point condominiums on the hill above the Serramonte site had been informed about the new windmill. Councilman Albert Teglia said he had met with them Saturday and that they had voiced no objections.

Teglia also introduced Walter Rose, a retired engineer and San Francisco mobile home resident, who has built an 18-foot tall telescoping, portable windmill atop his home. "I shoot for 70 percent or better," Rose said of his power generation. Rose warned that the wind will be "very flexible," blowing hard sometimes but then lulling for four or five days. "But it's going to create quite a sensation," he promised. He said everywhere he has taken his tower, he's been the center of attention, adding he's been featured on the Voice of America and in Mechanix Illustrated magazine.

Shelved for nearly a decade

Daly City-BART link emerges

By JOHN CURRY
Post Staff Writer

Planning for an extension of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District line from Daly City to San Francisco International Airport, shelved nearly a decade ago, is emerging as a top-priority project again, as evidenced from a "briefing" for North County officials and press at the state Department of Transportation building in San Francisco Friday.

The meeting was called to unveil a new CalTrans cost and engineering feasibility report on a BART extension southward along Interstate Freeway 280 from the present Daly City BART station to Interstate 380, then east along 380 to the airport terminal.

The report, asked for last July by Assemblyman Louis J. Papan (D-Millbrae), put the estimated cost at $647 million, if the BART tracks are elevated along 380, or $695 million, all in 1979 dollars, if tunneled along that stretch through San Bruno. The report concluded that "...the Freeway Corridor is engineeringly feasible."

This report, with some input from BART, also examined the possibility of a route along Junipero Serra Boulevard instead of 280 from D Street in Colma to Avalon Drive in South San Francisco as a possible alternate to the freeway-based route. But it would be more "environmentally sensitive" because it passes through neighborhoods which do not now have the traffic and noise BART could bring, and its estimated cost is $692 million, the engineers said.

This latest report also updated the potential cost of the favored alternative in a 1971 consultant report to BART, the so-called Muni corridor, which ran south from the Daly City station along present Southern Pacific property to San Pedro Road, then along the abandoned SP tracks on El Camino Real and Mission Road to the south boundary of Colma and along the abandoned San Francisco Muni property to the SP tracks near San Bruno Avenue in San Bruno.

CalTrans engineers changed the prospective route from the SP property south of the Daly City station to an alignment on the 280 right of way to San Pedro, taking into account Daly City's opposition to use of the SP right of way because it would block the city's redevelopment efforts in the area.

Construction cost of the Muni corridor, put at $384,623,151 in 1971, now stands at $664 million.

The costs of each of the three nine-plus-mile alternatives include a projected underground line from the SP tracks in San Bruno to the airport terminal, but not an estimated $175 million for a recommended extension to the Millbrae area, where there would be a passenger station and car storage yard. The CalTrans engineers said they agreed with the 1971 consultants that an airport turnaround would be very expensive and that a station farther south would reduce airport congestion.

Papan, who has worked a long time on clearing legislative obstacles to the extension, told the group of about 50 that "The need for the system is clear" and that there's a possibility that the federal government may pay most of the cost from potential windfall profits taxes on oil producers.

But, he warned, those windfall profits could be only about $17 billion, but when divided up among all the agencies wanting it, it's "not all that significant."

He fended off several pointed questions about the local effects on such a BART extension, pointing out that the detailed studies still must be made, ridership surveys and projections made in the light of increasingly scarce and expensive gasoline, and financing worked out.

Recalling San Mateo County's rejection of membership in the BART district because of its "over-reliance on the property tax at the time," he suggested that an "innovative approach" will be needed to avoid a "buy-in" cost for BART.

Howard Goode, BART director of planning analysis, noted that an agreement on annexation to the rapid transit district would have to be worked out between the BART Board of Directors and the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors and then submitted to a vote of the people in this county.

He added that BART has put off extension planning because of problems with the original 71-mile system, but now such planning has become feasible because "the potential benefits and ridership are so significant."

Asked how long it might be before the extension actually becomes operational from the time of approval, CalTrans Executive Assistant Richard D. Gee, a Belmont resident, said "It's safe to say eight to 10 years."

The only criticism of the 280-380 route came from San Mateo County Transit District General Manager John T. Mauro, who charged "It wouldn't do any good because there's no parking and it's in a bad location."

His own preference is for the Muni corridor because "It penetrates residential areas" where the riders are, he went on, adding that "On 280-380 you're by-passing the convenience."

Mrs. Rose Urbach of San Bruno told Papan that studies had shown that a BART extension to the airport would reduce Bayshore Freeway auto traffic by only five percent, which she called "very minimal for the exhorbitant costs of this."

But Papan replied that "That may not be the critical factor with the prices of gas. We need an integrated system (of BART, buses and the SP). Judging from the use of the Daly City BART station (the system's busiest outside of downtown San Francisco), a tying in with SamTrans buses might mean more of a cut than five percent."

Of most immediate impact on Daly City is the change of the first leg of the BART extension from the Daly City station from the old SP right of way to the freeway, either elevated or underground.

Daly City Mayor Victor G. Kyriakis said after the City Council meeting Monday night that this move indicated that "They're coming around" and that the years of haggling over BART's desire to use the SP property for a storage yard may be over.

"I think we agree on more than we disagree on now," he said happily, noting that the staffs probably would meet later this week to work out some kind of understanding about that.

BART has insisted that it must have a storage yard on the Peninsula, claiming it costs $1.5 million a year for energy to run empty trains back to its Hayward yard at night. One of its arguments earlier this year was that if it had to build the yard in San Francisco it would have to cut some service to Daly City.

Both Daly City and SamTrans, which has geared much of its North County service to connect at the Daly City BART station, argued loudly against that idea.

Tip line will be installed

The Daly City Police Department is going to have a new "tip line," ready or not, from now till the end of the fiscal year June 30, by popular demand.

The City Council voted unanimously for the line, in response to requests from three community organizations over the past few months asking for it. The line would be used by persons who didn't want to identify themselves but who have information about law violations or violators. They would not be asked to identify themselves and the conversations would not be recorded, as the regular police lines are.

Police Chief David A. Hansen didn't attend the Monday council meeting, but is known to be lukewarm at best about the value of a tip line. Last fall, Hansen said he questioned the effectiveness of such a line as a crime-fighting tool, saying people often use it for routine calls that should go on the main line.

He did say at the time, however, that he would go along with it if enough of the public wanted it.

City Manager David R. Rowe wasn't much more enthusiastic Monday night. He recommended that the tip line be installed for a four-month trial period, ending with the fiscal year, with the council then evaluating its effectiveness. He cited recent South San Francisco Police Department figures on its much-touted tip line, which showed only three percent of the calls brought new information on crime which could be followed up.

South San Francisco police say, however, that they are happy with the results they've had, and the backers of a similar Daly City service wouldn't be dissuaded Monday.

Mrs. Betty Martinez, 4223 Callan Blvd., Daly City, president of the South San Francisco PTA Council, said it would work but that "You'll have to advertise this. If it's not a positive step, it's not going to work."

Frank J. Loretta, 11 Marshall Way, president of the Hillside Homeowners Improvement Association, reiterated his group's position that any assistance given police helps. Loretta said that standard police requests for identification of callers and the recording "beep" on the line "scare people off, especially if they're timid."

How to get the word out to the public remained unresolved. Councilman Anthony Giammona suggested that the information be mailed with the water bills, but Rowe replied that the water billing cycle takes two months.

30TH BIRTHDAY

City considering buying a computer

Computer services will cost an estimated $115,000 next year, not including supplies, but $25,000 to $50,000 of that could be saved if the city buys its own mini-computer, Finance Director Robert Green told the Daly City City Council Monday night.

The council voted unanimously to call for proposals.

The city's contract for Xerox computer services will end next Dec. 31, and Daly City should join the many cities now looking into mini-computers, Green said. Daly City spent $117,000 on computer services in 1978 and $96,000 in 1979, he noted.

Green said he didn't anticipate that any personnel would have to be added, because two Finance Department employees already have shown interest in programming. And besides handling finance, Green went on, mini-computer company representatives have told him that the machines have the capability of handling police, library and word processing duties.

He asked that the city call for proposals through advertising, but Mayor Victor G. Kyriakis suggested that instead of being tied to a lowest bidder the city select a computer that meets its needs and work directly with the companies selling them.

The city is required to call for proposals, City Manager David R. Rowe reminded, but the decision needn't be based on price alone.

The council also did a bit of departmental reorganizing Monday, going with Councilman James Tucker's motion to move the city Maintenance Division from the present Recreation, Parks and Maintenance Department back to Public Works from whence it came a decade ago.

The decision went against the recommendation of Deputy City Manager Raymond Letsinger, who noted in his report last month that the Maintenance Division was functioning smoothly under Recreation and Parks and that complaints from users of facilities about things not being ready had dropped dramatically since 1969.

Tucker reasoned that "This gives Parks and Recreation an identity of its own."

In other business the council:

• Approved formation of a special committee of seven to review space allocation and use of the new Doelger Community Center in the former Abraham Lincoln School, now being acquired by the city.

Police seek local man in slaying

A 22-year-old Daly City man was shot to death late Friday night by another man who is on the lose, authorities said today.

The dead man is Anthony Barley, 462 90th St., Daly City. The suspect in the crime is Rudofo Cato, 27, whose address is believed to be 56 Perita Drive, Daly City.

Police said Barley was shot several times in the head.

Authorities said the Police Department received a call at 11 p.m. from a screaming woman who said she was at the 90th Street address.

Upon arrival, officers discovered Barley, and paramedics immediately transported him to Mary's Help Hospital, Daly City, where he was pronounced dead on arrival at 12:20 a.m. Saturday.

Officers said Barley and Cato and at least two others persons were at the 90th Street residence when the dead man and the suspect began arguing. The two men were acquaintances. Police said witnesses said they saw Cato shoot Barley.

Authorities said Cato left the Daly City residence just prior to the arrival of officers.

Cato is said to be 27, 5-foot-6, 150 pounds. He was last seen wearing burgundy pants and jacket and driving a gray pickup truck.

Civil penalties up to $85,000 asked against San Bruno pet store

San Mateo County District Attorney Keith Sorenson has announced that a lawsuit has been filed in Superior Court against Docktor Pet Stores Inc. seeking civil penalties of up to $85,000 for its practices in a San Bruno pet store.

In addition, Sorenson said his office has "an action of the same type" pending against a pet store in Serramonte Shopping Center in Daly City.

The complaint against Docktor Pet Stores alleges that the defendant has failed to take proper care of animals offered for sale at Tanforan Park Shopping Center in San Bruno.

Sorenson said Peninsula Humane Society animal control officers and consumer fraud representatives from his office have found evidence of pneumonia, distemper, sarcoptic mange and kennel cough in animals at the store.

The suit alleges that defendant has engaged in acts of unfair and unlawful business practices in the operation of this pet store and further alleges that the corporation is operating in violation of a permanent injunction issued against it in Sacramento, where another Docktor's Pet Store operated.

The complaint seeks civil penalties of $6,000 for each violation of the Sacramento injunction and $2,500 for each violation of California law. Sorenson said the suit specifies 10 violations.

In addition, the district attorney is seeking a preliminary injunction and a permanent injunction against the defendant to stop further sale of pets at the San Bruno shop.

Included among the allegations are that the company failed to take reasonable care to release for sale only those pets which are free of disease, that the defendant failed to provide adequate nutrition, humane care and medical attention, and that the pets were housed in unsanitary conditions.

The district attorney unsuccessfully attempted to obtain a temporary restraining order against the pet store last Friday.

Safety books for children

The San Mateo County Safety Council has marshaled a number of key organizations and institutions to put a safety book in the hands of young children, in a drive now getting under way.

The council recently purchased 20,000 safety puzzle books for children 5 to 10 years in old in kindergarten through the fourth grade. It is using some of its 130 business and industry members to move the books.

Recently, Barbara Russo, vice president of Home Safety and a member of the board of directors of the organization, met with representatives of Parent-Teacher Associations, Junior Women's Club, public schools and county fire and police departments to plan distribution.

As a result, the drive has been channeled through several key organizations, most of them countywide. Ms. Russo noted, however, that the door is open to other agencies interested in distributing the books.

The project was initiated last fall in support of the "International Year of the Child."

In support of the same project, the Safety Council has free films available to community organizations on bike safety and on home and recreational safety.

Puzzle books, films and additional information can be obtained from the Safety Council, 524 Marshall St., Redwood City 94063.

Coordinating the drive is Ralph A. Kuhlmann, executive vice president of the council. Adrian Delfino, president, is overseeing the project.

The safety books deal with prevention of accidents in the home, and have been keyed to the young children because studies point to a high absorption of learning at that age.

The project is ongoing, and is the first such undertaken by the local safety council. It is expected to be enlarged in the future, according to Kuhlmann.

Condo conversion 'a threat'

A panel of mayors told the 12th annual Mayor's Conference for the Older American in San Mateo that there are increasing benefits for senior citizens in their cities but that the conversion of apartments to condominiums poses a real threat.

Several mayors expressed concern at the Friday session, including San Mateo Mayor Jane Baker, whose city was host to the conference at the Beresford Recreation Center.

Mayor Baker pointed out that the city's condominium ordinance requires guaranteeing seniors who do not wish to buy their apartments a three year lease, if conversion is carried out.

Mayor Irving S. Amstrup of Burlingame had an even simpler answer. "We don't allow any condominium conversions in Burlingame," he said.

The mayors panel climaxed a morning that saw a parade of speakers discussing benefits now available for senior citizens and the varieties of special programs offered to them in the cities and county.

A highlight was the presentation of a bronze and wood plaque to Rachel Ralston for her work over the past five years in coordinating an American Association of University Women project resulting in the printing and distribution of 50,000 directories to seniors.

The directories name stores and other services which give discounts to senior citizens. Every city in the county but Brisbane will be covered when the sixth area directory, this one for Pacifica and Half Moon Bay, is published within the next two weeks.

Ms. Ralston, who undertook the Community Concern for Senior Citizens project as a community development activity, said the county and its merchants have set the age of 62 as that of the entrance age to senior citizen discounts. The little pamphlets, which are available at the Senior Resource Center in San Mateo, run about 60 pages.

Mary Pappas, Resource Center director, who operates the office in the Pan American Savings and Loan building on Fourth Avenue, San Mateo, discussed services available to seniors free at her office.

Mel Turner, director of CAPTURE, told of his organization's programs in assisting senior citizens.

One such program, he said, was the installation of more than 260 lock kits in the county, without cost to seniors. The program, which has served several cities, will be expanded to all of the county next month, Turner said.

Residents want that bus back

By JOHN CURRY

The mood is becoming testy among some Winston Manor residents in South San Francisco.

They are demanding that the San Mateo County Transit District restore the bus service of Route 27M, withdrawn from that area last summer.

SamTrans officials last week received a petition signed by more than 400 residents of Winston Manor, along with letters from South San Francisco City Councilwoman Roberta Teglia and Winston Manor Community Association president Gary Rubino, asking that the service be restored.

Rubino's letter said the association found an "overwhelming need" for service to Serramonte Shopping Center in Daly City, about a mile away, because of the many local people who have bank accounts, drug store prescriptions and jobs at Serramonte.

Rubino conceded that SamTrans may have been right in discontinuing the 27M route because of low ridership. But, he pointed out, two other routes, 26H and 29W, had the same starting points and destinations as 27M, which may have contributed to the low overall passenger count on the latter.

SamTrans has re-routed the 26H bus through Winston Manor three times a day each way during off-peak commute hours, but, Rubino complained, it doesn't go to Serramonte.

James Gallagher, SamTrans director of marketing and communications, said Thursday he also agreed with Rubino's contention that it doesn't pay to ride SamTrans at all from Winston Manor to Serramonte now, because passengers must transfer at Buri-Buri, farther from Serramonte than Winston Manor, and come back, a trip five minutes by car but an hour by bus.

"But where were the riders when we ran the 27M bus through there for more than two years?" Gallagher asked.

He acknowledged that the SamTrans planning staff will study the matter in the next few days.

"If there's some way we can work out something for them, we're certainly going to try to do it," he said.

He recalled that the 27M route was initiated in response to this type of neighborhood petition, "but ridership was abysmal."

The community association has spread the word far and wide, with copies of Rubino's letter going to Rep. William H. Royer, R-Redwood City; state Sen. John F. Foran, D-San Francisco/San Mateo County.

Valentines Day will be with us tomorrow and there doesn't seem to be any better time to say "thank you" to those many people who demonstrate that they have "miles and miles of heart" day in and day out via their dedicated volunteer efforts to create a better community and/or to ease the pain of persons having problems, physical, mental or emotional.

The North Peninsula area abounds with workers who fall into that category. Sometimes we read their names in the paper, many times they are persons who work quietly and receive no recognition for their service. Valentines Day seems to be the right day to say "thank you" to all those volunteers.

We live in a better community because of you!

One local agency which consistently seeks to serve is the Beta Sigma chapter of the Epsilon Sigma Alpha International sorority.

This past week Beta Sigma chapter member Mrs. Vera Leuty was honored by the sorority's bay area council for 20 years of devoted volunteer work. Mrs. Leuty was presented a gold pin at the regional meeting held in Fremont.

Not one to rest on her laurels, Mrs. Leuty now is busy with the chapter's ongoing project, working with the patients at the Hill Haven Convalescent hospital and preparing for the chapter's annual fashion show.

This year the show will be at Hope Lutheran Church in Daly City Feb. 23. Ross's of Pacifica will present the "Fashion Carosel" and chapter members will model the fashions.

Tickets to the luncheon-fashion show are being sold for $5 per person. All proceeds from the show will go to the California League for the Handicapped.

The St. Francis Heights Association will hold its first post-incorporation meeting tomorrow evening, Thursday, at 7:30 in the multi-use room of the Fernando Rivera school on Southgate Avenue.

Officers and members of a board of directors will be elected to serve until the first regularly scheduled election in November, and association members will be able to hear and question County Supervisor Arlen Gregorio and Daly City Mayor Victor Kyriakis.

Persons wishing more information, or persons wishing to volunteer to serve in a leadership capacity, are asked to contact Mrs. Marie Guerrero or Mrs. Virginia Tierney as soon as possible.

Members of the Mary's Help Hospital Guild will meet Friday at noon to hear a guest speaker discuss "A Healthy Approach to Weight Control."

Following the meeting and the address, members will adjourn to the hospital cafeteria for a luncheon.

Members of the executive board will have a pre-meeting session beginning at 10:30 a.m. in the hospital board room while the members of the tray favor committee will be meeting in the cafeteria, during the same period, to whip up those cheery favors that grace the trays of hospitalized persons.

On the subject of hospitals, Mrs. Millie Dunow and Mrs. Barbara Cardinalli will be hostesses for the annual California Hospital Association convention which will be held at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in San Francisco Feb. 24-26. Mrs. Jane Hillsman and Mrs. Marie Michalski, the president and first vice president of the Mary's Help Guild, will be representing the local hospital at the convention.

The bride, who attended Daly City schools before moving with her family to Hillsborough, was married by the Rev. J. W. Gregg Meister during the holiday season to Carey of Tacoma, Washington.

Following a honeymoon cruise through the Panama Canal, the pair have moved into their home near Fort Lewis, Wash.

Breathing a sigh of relief and relaxing after weeks of hectic activity is Mrs. Harry Quinn and Mrs. James Rainey, the co-chairpersons for this past weekend's Bouquet of Fashion sponsored by the Westlake Catholic Women.

More than 1,000 women jammed into the grand ballroom for an afternoon of relaxed dining, music and fashions.

Salvation Army appealing for donated materials

The Salvation Army is appealing to the public to assist their rehabilitation and service programs due to a recent and sharp decline in donated materials.

Major George W. Duplain, administrator of the San Francisco Adult Rehabilitation Center which serves San Mateo, San Francisco and Marin counties, states that furniture and bric-a-brac are particularly scarce at this time.

These materials are greatly needed, not only to sustain the services offered daily to the men and women in The Salvation Army rehabilitation programs, but also to provide materials to recycle in their work-therapy training programs.

If there isn't a significant increase in donated materials Duplain stated the programs will be in serious jeopardy. Pick-up service is provided free of charge for all reusable materials.

"Donations are tax deductible and will greatly aid our Center in this time of need," Duplain stated, asking the public to call for Red Shield truck pick-up service in their area.

Navy is topic of library friends

"Navies in War and in Peace" by Admiral of the Fleet of the Soviet Union S.G. Gorshkov will be reviewed by Rear Admiral James Grealish, USNR-R, for The Friends of the Daly City Library and their guests Feb. 21, 10 a.m., in the community room, Westlake Library, 275 Southgate Ave.

Denise Schwarzbach, president of The Friends, welcomes the public to attend, free of charge.

Admiral Gorshkov has been commander in chief of the Soviet Navy for 24-years. He also is a deputy minister of defense. He and his first deputy are full members of the Central Committee of the Communist Party. "Navies in War and in Peace" is a translation from what was approved for publication in the Soviet Union in 1972.

Rear Admiral Grealish was born in San Francisco and attended schools there, graduating from the University of San Francisco in 1942 with a degree in accounting. He enlisted in the U.S. Navy in 1942, reporting to Nava Reserve Midshipman's School, from which he was comissioned ensign on March 5, 1943. His final command during World War II was as commanding officer of he USS Cronin.

He returned to civilian life in 1946 as an accountant. In 1951, he was recalled to duty for the Korean Conflict, serving as executive officer of several ships.

Since returning to civilian life in 1953, he has served in financial management positions and presently is a vice president of Protected Investors of America.

"Will you tell people about Green Immigrants! I liked it so much I turned off my soap opera so I could read it."

"Green Immigrants" (Harcourt, $12.95) is an illustration of the type of non-fiction that is coming from the press to make the current season exciting for readers and for tpeople who should return to reading.

"Green Immigrants" presents the history and the romance of hundreds of plants that were brought to America by European and Asians.

Take the dandelion. In Japan, 200 varieties are cultivated in white, orange, black and copper colors. In ancient Greece, its leaves were tenderized to make a salad that gods gave to men as a reward for valor. The Romans ate it to control scurvy; the French concocted a gourmet dish that is still popular; while the British fermented its golden flowers to make a highly regarded wine.

The colonists brought it to America to decorate their gardens and used its leaves as a laxative and diuretic. Once the dandelion escaped over the garden walls, it spread throughout the counry to nourish rabbits and woodchucks and to garnish the Indians' stew pots. It preceded the pioneers into the great plains and arrived in California before the 49ers.

In spite of its human enemies, the dandelion aerates your lawn and helps your grass grow greener. it exudes a gas that makes fruit ripen days earlier and grow bigger and better. As a transplanted flower, the dandelion has been called a most delightful gift to the United States.

In "Green Immigrants," Carol Shaver Haughton delights her readers with the history, legends and folklore of hundreds of plants, from A for apple to Z for zinnia, that crossed the seas and took root in America.

"Native Harvesters" is a colorful volume of recipes and botanicals that were originated by the American Indians. "Long before the native Americans established seasonal settlements, planted and harvested crops and domesticated animals, they had accumulated an extensive knowledge of plant usage and food preparation."

Native Americans originated dishes and customs that are part of the life of their 20th Century counterparts. In "Native Harvests" (Vintage Books, $5.95), Barrie Kavasch mentions some of them. "Native American cuisine is a continental cooking entirely our own . . . uniquely American Indian: barbeques and clambakes, steamed lobsters and stuffed oysters, clam and corn chowders and gumbos, multitudes of cranberry creations, Boston baked beans, Brunswick stew, mincemeat pies and spoonbread, plus the infinite variety of cornbreads and puddings and dumplings."

Indeed, it may be said that Europeans conquered American Indians, but the Indian women captured the appetites of their conquerors. In memory of such cooks, how about gracing your table with sunflower seed soup or turkey with oyster cornbread and raisin stuffing?

Or perhaps your fancy leads you to marinated mushrooms and wild leeks or fried squash (or pumpkin) blossoms with Indian cornmeal dessert and wild strawberry bread.

Why should such dishes die with Kit Carson and Buffalo Bill?

Jeff teacher doubles as a popular novelist

By KAREN WONG
and
MARCO PANATTONI

Phyllis Wood, a Jefferson High School Essential Skills teacher, also is the author of many popular young adult novels.

"I was teaching students who couldn't find books that they liked to read," she says. "There just weren't enough good books for teen-agers." This problem gave her the motivation to write her books, which she has now been doing for nine years.

She enjoys writing very much, though she admits it's hard work to complete a novel, which often takes more than a year. Most of the work consists of making corrections and "polishing it up."

Ms. Wood was born in Palo Alto. She attended Lowell High in San Francisco, and received her bachelor's degree at U.C. Berkeley in speech and drama. She then attended Stanford, where she got her secondary teaching credentials, and received her master's degree in reading from San Francisco State University.

She began her teaching career in Kern County, and continued teaching for five years at various schools in California before taking time off to raise her family of three with her husband, Roger, who is in the insurance business as well as being an adult school teacher at Serramonte.

The teacher-author's career resumed at Thornton High School, teaching reading classes for 10 years. Later, she came to Jeff, where she has taught English Skills classes for the past four years.

Her first book (published by Scholastic in 1970) is entitled "The Night Summer Began." Since then, she has written "Your Bird Is Here, Tom Thompson," "I've Missed a Sunset or Three," "Song of the Shaggy Canary," "A Five-Color Buick and a Blu-Eyed Cat," "I Think This Is Where We Came In," "Win Me and You Lose," abd "Get a Little Lost, Tia," all published by the New American Library.

Praise for her novels has come from the Sex Information and Education Council of the United States, and the Journal of Reading. The "nice, warm response" she receives through the mail comes from teachers and parents, as well as students.

Her new novel, "This Time Count Me In," will be coming out in March this year.

CLUBS

Western Onion Week will be the next activity for Jefferson's Filipino Club.

Western Onion, a singing telegram company, will be imitated by club members during the week of Feb. 18. Messages, which will be taken the week before the event, cost 50 cents.

Club members will find the person for whom the singing telegram is intended and will sing the message between classes and at lunch. The sender of the message also tells to what the tune he wishes the message sung.

Next month, Filipino Club members shall start getting together the Second Annual Filipiniana Night, which will be scheduled sometime in May.

Beginning at 8 p.m. in the Little Theater, members will express many different Filipino traditions through singing and dancing. The theme "Filipinos — Then and Now" was picked because this night will tell how those Eastern people had been influenced by other people from different countries, including the United States.

The club did this last year, too, which turned out to be a huge success. It will be a free show, but donations will be accepted because money will be needed to make the costumes and props, and to hire a choreographer.

The club also is doing things for the good of the community. Last December, members started collecting aluminum cans and old newspapers for recycling. Club President Shirley Soberon says that if the public would like to contribute, to just take the newspapers and cans to Jefferson High's Filipino Club. They will collect until May; then they will recycle them.

Much money has been made through various school activities and by Christmas caroling. (While caroling, club members also visited the sick at Mary's Help Hospital.) Together with the profits on Western Onion Week and recycling, the money will, it is hoped, cover the cost of the Filipiniana Show.

Before starting rehearsal for the big night, though, this club is going to go the Golden Gate Park on Feb. 25 to relax — to store up the energy for all the work ahead of them.

Johnson paces Ram rally

By RICK EYMER

Derrick Johnson scored when Westmoor High needed it.

As a result, the Rams took a hotly contested 53-49 decision from host Terra Nova Friday in a North Peninsula League basketball contest.

The issue wasn't decided until Ram Keith Dowdell sank both ends of a one-and-one free throw situation with 30 seconds left to play in the game.

Johnson missed his first four shots of the game and, until the fourth quarter, never got untracked.

"My assistant coach (Byron Van Alstyne) told me I had to slow down," Johnson said. "I was forcing too many shots early."

Johnson caught fire in the final quarter and netted 11 points to help erase an eight-point deficit going into the last period. Johnson finished with a game-high 23 points.

Terra Nova began the game with a flourish. Scoring the first six points, the Tigers looked hard to beat with a patient offense and a zone defense that effectively cut off baseline drives.

Terra Nova center Mike Pedro and forward Rich Belli were given a lot of attention by the Rams' defense, leaving openings for other Tiger players.

First Ross Osotio, and then Marty Charlton took advantage of the openings to lead the Tigers to a 12-6 first-quarter advantage. Westmoor cut the lead at halftime, but Terra Nova picked up the tempo in the third quarter, this time with Bob Juergens and Kevin McKitrick helping the Tiger cause.

Johnson led a 22-10 last-quarter effort for Westmoor.

"We got over anxious early," Johnson said. "But we found our heads and got back into the game. It was scary to get behind, but we never gave up. Terra Nova is a tough club."

Rams knock off Tigers

Westmoor High's girls' basketball team finally did it. It won a big game. After trying all season and coming close, the Rams finally beat a team ahead of them in the standings, knocking off third-place Terra Nova, 53-45, Friday in Daly City.

The win was welcomed by fourth-place Westmoor, which is battling Half Moon Bay for the last spot in the North Peninsula League playoffs.

"This is our first big win since I've been here," commented Westmoor Coach Phil Davis. "The girls have been working real hard. Now that we've won, maybe the breaks will start coming our way."

The Rams created all their own breaks in the second half, when a ball-hawking defense sparked by guard Jill Brophy produced a 20-point night for the senior guard and a 28-20 advantage for Westmoor. Dawn Smith and Pam Chuck were big rebounders for the Rams, and helped get the fastbreak going with accurate outlet passing.

Jeff revives run-and-gun

By MIKE FICHER

The whispers were reaching an audible level. Whatever happened to the North Peninsula League? The run, gun and fun capital of the county prep basketball wars was going conservative. The excitement of free-style basketball was giving way to four-corner offense, the full court press, and set plays.

So, for nostalgia's sake, Serramonte and Jefferson high schools staged an incredible shooting exhibition Friday night, reminiscent of past NPL Wild West duels, with the Indians outscoring host Serramonte 97-90.

The contest was played at full tilt, with both teams throwing up shots at a rapid pace. Jeff mounted a 10-point lead four minutes into the contest but saw it vanish as Serramonte outscored the visitors 20-4 to take a 30-24 advantage.

The Indians appeared in trouble early in the second quarter when point guard Richard Rodgers departed with an injury. But senior guard Freddie Burks moved to the point and played his best game of the season, tallying 22 points and passing dor six assists.

Jeff coach Bud Breshahan noted that Burks' play was the difference. "He was primarily responsible for the 24-1 burst in the second quarter with his passing and scoring. We don't always know what Freddie is going to do when he gets the ball, but he's an exciting player, and he makes things happen," said Bresnahan.

Burks' outstanding performance gives Bresnahan another strategic move to throw at opponents. Now the Jeff coach, when he chooses to speed up the tempo of the game, plans to shift Burks to the point, with Rodgers manning a wing.

"He just played a super ball game," Bresnahan said. "Richard is more predictable at point, but Freddie can really make things happen when we choose to run. He is more in his element in a running game."

After a "show" third quarter, with Jeff extending its lead to 72-52, both teams shifted back into high gear. Although the Indians did push the advantage up to 25 points, the Regents fought back with a flurry of three-point plays and long jumpers. Unfortunately, poor free throw shooting (Serramonte hit only 24 of 48 charity tosses) cost the Regents the game, despite a 38-point final period.

In addition to Burks' 22 points, Jeff forwards Ernie Dupree and Ken Mackey added 17 each to go with 12 and 15 rebounds, respectively. Center Zach Alexander chipped in 15. Serramonte was led by sophomore forward Curtis Alexander, who poured in 26 points, while Darryl Williams had 24, Jeff Jones 17 and Marcus Jones 13.

Mills beats San Mateo, 78-72

It was a pleasant change for Mills High center Glen Radel, being the tallest player on the floor.

Two days earlier Radel, a 6-6 junior, had been asked to play man-to-man against Hillsdale's Nick Vanos, who went right over the top of the helpless Radel for 51 points, helping hand Mills its second straight Mid-Peninsula League loss.

"He's just too big," said Radel. "One man can't stop him."

But Friday night at San Mateo, Radel had his best game as a varsity player as Mills took a 78-72 win in a game both teams felt represented sort of a turning point in the season.

Radel, three inches taller than the tallest Bearcat, scored 21 points (tying his varsity career high), pulled down 17 rebounds and accounted for two steals.

The Viking front line, which had not been remarkably productive as a unit recently, totaled 43 points and took down 25 rebounds.

Mills is now 7-3 in the MPL (17-6 overall), a half game behind second-place Hillsdale. San Mateo dropped to 5-4 (13-6), but will certainly make the league playoffs.

The game was close for the final three quarters, and came down to the last minute. Both sides were encouraged.

"I think this game represents a turning point for us," said Radel. "San Mateo played much better tonight than they did against us at Mills (a 10-point Mills win). Our movement is good, our passing.

"I think we're peaking now, and we can do well in our last three games. I think we can beat Aragon or Hillsdale. And I'd rather play in a tough league like this. You know you have to do a good job. It makes things more interesting."

San Mateo Coach Norm Bostock also felt his team had taken a turn for the better.

"We're all right now," he said. "I knew we could play this type of game. We've had trouble with consistency in the past, with a bad quarter or a bad game here and there. But they're playing well now. And when you play well you can win. I don't care how tall we are (San Mateo is a relatively short team) or how many good players there are around like Vanos or Powell (Aragon's Kenny Powell)."

San Mateo, with balanced scoring, led 20-13 after a quarter as Mills missed a lot of shots from the perimeter of the Bearcats' 3-2 zone defense.

But in the second quarter some San Mateo starters went to the bench for a breather and Mills quickly forced turnovers and turned them into points. San Mateo led 36-34 at the half.

Once again Paul Pickett was the glue that held the Bearcats together. Mills began to attack the Bearcat zone well in the second half, getting shots in the lane and underneath, continuing to draw fouls and — for a change — sinking the free throws (the Vikes had put up some bricks in the first half).

But Pickett hit his first five shots from the field and tallied 12 points in the quarter to keep things close; Mills led 57-56 after three.

With five minutes to go and Mills leading 61-60, Pickett went to the bench for a brief rest.

That's when Mills struck, even though All-MPL Mills guard Dave Delbon was on the bench with foul trouble. Radel followed his own missed shot back home. Radel picked up a steal at the San Mateo end, and teammate John Verducci scored. Seconds later, forward Jim Ryan hit a pair of free throws, and suddenly the Vikes were up 67-60.

San Mateo never recovered from that spurt.

Mills slowed the ball down, sending guards cutting off high post screens, drew fouls and sank free throws.

But San Mateo refused to fold. With 1:10 left, San Mateo's James Daily got a steal off Mills' weave, passed to Pickett who passed right back for a bucket, cutting the Mills lead to four, 72-68.

The teams traded points. With 0:37 left, Daily took a nice feed from Eric Jacobsen and drove for a bucket to make it 75-72 Mills.

Aragon nearing title

Aragon High's basketball team, should it win the next two games, will at least tie for the Mid-Peninsula League basketball title.

Not too long ago, it appeared the Dons were headed for oblivion.

Aragon has put together an impressive seven-game win streak together, including its latest triumph, a 73-47 victory over host Crestmoor Friday night.

The Dons have played well enough to earn the county's top spot in the latest rankings.

It's been that kind of year.

The Dons were doing just fine in the pre-season, until they ran into Serra at the El Camino Tournament. Then, in league, Aragon downed then-unbeaten Hillsdale before losing to Mills and Capuchino.

Ever since, Aragon has played near-flawless basketball behind the capable hands of guards Kenny Powell and Ron Franklin.

Against the Falcons, Powell had 12 assists while Franklin chipped in with a game-high 21 points.

The game was never in doubt; Aragon reeled off 25 first-quarter points. Subs played much of the second half.

Don frontliner John Patton, a sophomore on a team of seniors, continued to impress observers with improved play both under the basket — as a rebounder and as a scorer. Patton had 14 points, while Gary Williams had 10 and Powell finished with 12.

Aragon (8-2 in the MPL, 18-6 overall) will face its last real challenge when San Mateo invades the Dons' gym Wednesday at 3:15 p.m.

Aragon ..... 25 20 16 12—73

Jeff, EC soccer finalists

There are just two teams left in the North Peninsula League soccer playoffs, first-place Jefferson High and second-place El Camino.

Jefferson rolled past visiting South City, 3-0, Friday. El Camino edged Half Moon Bay, 1-0.

Jeff hosts El Camino Wednesday at 3 p.m. to determine which team will represent the NPL in the Central Coast Section Region 1 playoffs. El Camino will be out to avenge an NPL regular-season 1-0 loss.

El Camino ..... 1 0 — 1
El Camino: Piazza.

Determined Scots stop San Carlos

Carlmont High basketball Coach Terry Stogner is a realist.

"If Phifer was in there we would've lost by six to eight points," said Stogner.

But San Carlos High's sometimes awesome 6-7 center Paul Phifer did less than three quarters of damage to determined Carlmont's playoff hopes.

Phifer collected 22 points before fouling out late in the third quarter. It took four quarters, plus two overtimes, for Carlmont to defeat South Peninsula Athletic League round robin winner San Carlos 68-65 Friday night.

Phifer's absence was the great equalizer. Before his premature departure, SC seemed into control, leading by five points. With Phifer out, Carlmont was up to the task, and the victory earned the Scots (5-5) a third-place finish and an extended season.

Carlmont visits second-place Sequoia next Friday night in the opening round of the SPAL playoffs. San Carlos hosts fourth-place Menlo the same night.

"We thought we had to win to make the playoffs," said sophomore guard Rich Farley, who sparked Carlmont's comeback with 19 second-half points. "They're no better than us without Phifer. If we had a 6-7 player, we'd dominate the league."

Farley scored a game-high 25 points, but in the beginning it seemed Farley would never find his smooth outside touch. After hitting his first shot, Farley missed his next five, and wound up with just three hoops for the first half.

"I thought I would be hot," said Farley. "My touch was on in warm-ups. I felt good all day. I was too tense in the first half. In the second half I took my time a little more on my shots, and started relaxing. That's when they started to fall."

Carlmont's 6-0 senior forward Bruce Nash left much of the scoring to his younger teammate, netting just 12 points, but Nash did his share with five assists and three steals.

"Whenever we play San Carlos they talk to me a lot," said Nash. "Always talking, for a while at the start of the game. I just wanted to cut loose. They want me to think I can do it all.

Local fans won't get 'tired of excellence'

Le Pacini

We Bay Area fans of professional teams are blessed.

In the 49ers, Giants, Warriors, A's — and maybe the Raiders — we have teams that are at the moment underdogs, and while losers may not be any more fun, they are generally more interesting than winners.

As that great seer, Al McGuire, has said, "The eye becomes tired of excellence."

"Dynasties" are conforting because they offer their fans security, but losers are to sports buffs what mistresses are to happily married men — exciting, dangerous, intriguing, unpredictable, adventurous . . .

What team, after all, was more interesting, the Yankees of the 1950s and 1960s or the 1951 Giants? The Green Bay Packers of Vince Lombardi or the second place 1957 49ers of Frankie Albert? The dominant Celtics or the come-from-30-points-behind 1974-75 unexpected NBA champs, the Warriors?

Teams and athletes who hold promise give hope, and are thus always more interesting than teams and athletes that are totally proficient, that verge on perfection.

One can admire, respect, even stand in awe of perfection, of beauty, of efficiency, but Martha Ray has always been more interesting than Grace Kelly; the Venus de Milo is more mysterious, more fascinating than any of today's full-bodied, air brushed centerfolds; Charles Laughton's Quasimodo more arresting than any Tyrone Power movie character.

"Rocky" was more interesting as a loser in the first movie than he was as a "winner" in the sequel.

Yes, just as evil is generally more interesting than goodness (What are the most interesting stories in the daily newspapers; what human has had more written and said about him than Hitler?), losers are quite often more interesting than winners because losers, or expected losers, provide the suspense in the world.

So, viva the Giants, the 49ers, the Warriors, the A's — and maybe the Raiders.

One of the best, most exciting high school basketball games I've seen in years ended recently in a heartbreaking, literal last-second loss for the favorite because of a skull, a breech of fundamental basketball.

Several of my favorite adages proved out in that game:

1. Most athletic contest, especially very close ones, are ultimately lost more on mistakes made or not made than on the talent put on the field or court;

2. Such contests are lost only by the LAST skull (that losing team mentioned above got the chance to go ahead just prior to ITS skull because of one by the eventual winner;

3. When the game is over, nobody remembers the next to last mistake (made, incidentally, in this case by the coach), only the last one;

4. The winning coach, even though he may come close to costing his team the game, is always commended as a genius for having led his team to an upset;

5. Games are rarely lost because of one play, even though it may seem that way; there are always more fundamental, underlying reasons (as the losing coach pointed out to the player who pulled the skull — as well as to the rest of the team — in the locker room, "Hey, we lost that game on the foul line 'way before that mistake. We never should have had to be in the position of having to pull the game out with last minute heroics.").

You may have noted that I have studiously avoided mentioning the teams, the coaches or the players involved. That is because they have nothing to do with the REAL point of this item, that being that, aside from all of the adages, it was still one helluva game. The kids played generally well and always hard for the entire game, and the coaches did the best they could while proving that they were human, and therefore not perfect. It would have been a tough game for either team to lose, but neither had to be embarrassed by how they won and lost, and the fans left happy, having been entertained and thrilled.

And, to add a cliche to all of the adages, that's what sports is all about.

Some miscellanous quotes, not necessarily in order of importance, gleaned from a recent interview with new Giants' manager Dave Bristol:

"Outstanding. I'd rather start managing at 32 than 82." (In answer to the question of whether it had been an advantage or disadvantage to start managing in the majors as such a relatively callow youth.)

"The biggest thing is to keep your players healthy and your starting pitchers rested and ready to go each day. Health and pitching count most over 162 games; that, and the manager not wearing out his bullpen." (In answer to the question of what the most important elements are in staying in a pennant race.)

"Handling the press takes experience. I'm better able to handle the writers now than I was when I was 32 years old."

"When they (writers) ask you questions, you've got to give them answers."

"I'll never turn my back on the press." (All three quotes in answer to the question of how he expects to get along with and handle the local press.)

"I don't know about communicating, but I'll talk plenty to them." (In response to the question of whether he was going to "communicate" with his players better than Joe Altobelli reportedly did or didn't.)

"It was to be a major league player. But I didn't have the ability, so I had to go another way. I thought I was good enough, but the people in the front office didn't." (When asked if he had ALWAYS wanted to be a manager.)

"I'll tell them what I've always thought. Candlestick is there and we have to live with it, so we should take advantage of it. In fact, we should have a greater home field advantage than all of the teams who play in 'perfect' weather. Tom Haller and I used to sit around praying for fog on the nights when we were getting warm weather teams in to play against us." (Explaining what he will tell his players when they start using their home field as an excuse for losing.)

"Minton will be our first late man out of the pen against right-handed batters. He's got a good arm, a quality fast ball that sinks, a quality curve and a qualtiy slider." (When asked about Greg Minton.)

"Whitson will be able to carry his own load. He has an outstanding arm. I wish we had a carload like him." (When asked about Ed Whitson.)

"Like so many young players, Clark was brought up too soon. He's been put into the position of having to learn the game in the big leagues. But he improves every season, and he'll be better than ever this year." (Commenting on why Jack Clark seems at times to be meditating on the field.)

TAG END

A personal note on the Giants' in defense. They started last season with long term injuries to the two men who had been their best pitchers in spring training, Minton and John Montefusco.

When the Giants were off to a poor start primarily because of pitching problems, who knows, but what a healthy Montefusco wouldn't have been the stopper they so sorely needed in the starting rotation (which would have taken pressure off Vida Blue, Bob Knepper and Ed Halicki), or that Minton wouldn't have been able to halt those late rallies that Gary Lavelle couldn't in early season.

Helping children adjust is JESD program topic

By JOHN CURRY

There are times when the best place for a classroom teacher to sit is on the floor because when their charges are only three feet tall, the floor is much more accessible than a table.

Teachers in the Jefferson Elementary School District Pre-School Program spend a lot of their work days on the floor.

Three things have remained the same during the 13-year history of the program:

- Three of the four full-time teachers are still there;
- The exuberance of the children despite their obstacles;
- The ever-present need for more adult volunteers.

Because of its large minority and new immigrant population, many on low incomes or welfare, the Daly City-based school district early on saw the need for a program to get the children of these families adjusted as early as possible to the school system.

Of the 88 children now enrolled in the four weekday classes at the former General Pershing School on Hanover Street in old Daly City, 52 are from families that speak little or no English. The transition problems for them in regular kindergarten clsses a re obvious, according to Miss Mary-Lee Bailey, the district's pre-school supervisor.

The age reuirement is tha t children be 3 years, 9 months to 4 years, 9 months old on Sept. 1 of the school year. That means kindergarten next year for them.

Other criteria used for admission are exceptional needs, those with many different types of physical and learning handicaps; and families with "special circumstances which may diminish opportunity for maximum growth and development."

The $115,000 state-funded budget this year is paying for 11 full-time staff, including teachers, teacher aides and office help, Miss Bailey said. But there also are 70 unpaid volunteers on the staff and 13 people on the district staff involved with the pre-school.

The children are divided into four classes of 22 each, with state law requiring an adult in class for each five children. That means that with a teacher and aide in each class, there must be three parents. Some parents have been "more responsive than others" to the needs for their help, Miss Bailey noted, which is why "We need volunteers — always volunteers."

Parents are required to come to parent meetings and attend to classroom duties, or must provide for another relative, such as an aunt, to take their place.

The classes meet for 3½ hours over the regular 180-day schol year, concentrating on spontaneous self-directed play, language development, perceptual training, cognitive development, creative exploration, motor activities, body coordination and movement, health and nutrition education, safety and individual activities.

In a group like this and at this age, learning comes quickly, particularly in communication, Miss Bailey said. Of those from Spanish-speaking homes, 24 spoke limited English and eight none at the start of the year, she recalled.

Other languages represented among the children are Cantonese, Tagalog, Samoan, Arabian, Maltese and Punjabi (Hindu Indian), she said.

The school day generally starts with snacks in the morning of celery and peanut butter, cereal or sometimes scrambled eggs. This, Miss Bailey said, is breakfast for some of the children.

The school also provides lunch, at reduced rates or at no cost, depending on the parents' financial circumstances. Some children from different cultures have refused to eat the foods served, not being accustomed to them. "But young children are fussy anyway, and this is a whole new learning thing for them," she said. There have been a few cases of malnutrition among the children, but not many, she asserted.

Also on the agenda during the school year are field trips in the pre-school program's two old minibuses to the Half Moon Bay pumpkin fields at Halloween and to the San Francisco Zoo. "But with the gasoline situation, there aren't as many field trips as before," Miss Bailey lamented.

The minibuses are used to bring children to school whose parents can't transport them and have taken parents to a Christmas art workshop and to San Mateo for tuberculosis tests, she said.

Art of compromise employed in settling suits

The bulk of civil justice in San Mateo County is molded by a man who says all it takes is knowledge of human nature "and a little poker playing at times."

The man is senior Superior Court Judge Melvin E. Cohn.

He has served as the 14-member bench's settlement conference judge since 1977, deftly utilizing his experience in the art of compromise to the point that about 90 percent of the civil lawsuits in San Mateo County are settled without a trial, and usually in his chambers.

That percentage of cases has traditionally been settled before trial anyway but not with the present swiftness and design to keep the court calendar in San Mateo County timely.

Before mandatory pretrial settlement conferences were instituted in the early 1970s, attorneys felt little pressure or obligation to arbitrate their cases much before the day of trial, Cohn indicated.

Consequently, backlogs were created.

But since Cohn became a fulltime settlement judge three years ago, San Mateo County's court calendar is as "current" as any in the state.

"Once a lawyer understands the value of his case, it's easy to reach a settlement," Cohn said in an interview in his chambers at the Hall of Justice in Redwood City.

Experienced lawyers usually are not too far apart, the judge said.

"There are some who need guidance, but there are those who need maneuvering by the judge. I don't give up when one side states $1,000 and the other $100,000.

When attorneys march into Cohn's chambers for a settlement conference, the judge has already studied the required documents in which each side states its case.

At the mandatory conference, scheduled three weeks before a civil case is slated for trial, Cohn requires attorneys to bring their clients along.

"With local lawyers whom I know, I can tell from their initial statement what they really want," Cohn said. "I learn their methods of operation. I know a guy who is demanding $40,000 really wants $25,000 to $27,500."

The judge said that about 25 percent of the civil cases settle at an optional conference three months before a trial. What is the key to settlements?

"It always boils down to the act of compromise," Cohn said. "Some people I know claim this is no way to run a court. But a civil trial lasts an average four days, with expert witness fees as high as $1,000 per day, jury expenses of about $100 per day, and attorney and court costs.

"Generally, attorney fees are substantially less with a settlement than with a trial. A $10,000 jury verdict can be the same as a $7,500 settlement. By settling a case, people can usually have control of their own destiny."

Cohn said that he used to keep records about cases which went to trial that he was unable to settle.

"About 90 percent of the time I came within 90 percent of the verdict in cases which went to trial," the judge said.

Cohn said his role doesn't give him a power complex.

"Most attorneys like to settle cases," he said.

Cohn, appointed to the Superior Court in March, 1964, after only six months on the Municipal Court bench, has played an active role in state judicial policies, rules, procedures and education.

He has created most of the civil courses taught to new judges each year in Berkeley. He gives the opening lecture in monthly orientation for new judges classes in the East Bay.

"When you make a decision," he advises new judges, "check the law and facts carefully — but once you've reached a conclusion — make that decision promptly."

"Don't look back or second-guess yourself," he tells judges. "The decision, right or wrong, should be the best you can make. If you've made a mistake, there is appellate review.

"Don't worry about being reversed, the salary is the same. Also, more than likely, it's someone else's opinion that you're wrong — and you may still not feel that way."

Cohn advises judges not to worry about the media in sensitive cases.

"Make your best decision, even if unpopular, but write a lucid opinion, explaining it in simple terms," Cohn advises new judges.

"if it's a complicated matter, invite the media into your chambers and explain it. The reporters will appreciate it. Even if they don't agree with you, they will respect you."

On relations with the public, Cohn tells new colleagues, "Be alert to public relations — courts and judges are not too popular because the public doesn't understand what you're doing and why. Tell them at every opportunity — give speeches, be active in service for the community."

"Be available to the public," Cohn says, with a warning: "Don't stay in an ivory tower. Keep in touch with service clubs and other public service organizations to know what is going on in the real world — it may keep you in office."

Cohn practices what he preaches, serving on several community and profession-related committees and commissions.

But most of all, he practices what he does best — settling civil cases in San mateo county, even when it involes a poker face.

Peninsulans show little enthusiasm for the draft

By HEIDI VAN ZANT
Post Staff Writer

Apparently sentiments run deep in San Mateo County that the woman's place is not in the armed services.

Interviews Friday with students at Skyline College in San Bruno revealed that many young men believe women are not physically and emotionally equipped to sling a rifle over their shoulder and go off to war.

Women, however, are more divided on the issue. The majority of those interviewed said that females could at least serve in a behind-the-lines capacity — if not go right to the front themselves.

Several remarked that people probably would have a stronger feeling that women should be drafted if they felt the country truly was being threatened by Russia.

They said that Afghanistan reminds them too much of another Vietnam but that if there was another Pearl Harbor, men and women should be asked to defend the United States.

Daly City nursing student Eileen Jensen, 25, said that if she was not diabetic and did not have a child she would be willing to join the service.

"I would think it is my duty," she said. "You have it everywhere but in America."

She believes this country disagrees over whether women should be drafted because Americans are not scared enough that a war threat exists.

"The fighting's never been here," she said. "If New York or San Francisco was bombed, it would be a little different."

Another woman who believes women should be drafted alongside men is Maryanne McDaniels, 26, of Daly City, who said that she would go to the front lines if she were needed.

"Women are not just as capable as men — they are more capable. They are more dependable," according to the soft-spoken Miss McDaniels.

One South San Francisco mother of two grown sons, who has returned to school to study law and math, said there should be no distinction between men and women when it comes to the draft.

"I would go if it's necessary, and it has to be absolutely necessary," she said firmly. "We have a good country that we should fight for."

Another woman with strong feelings of patriotism is Susan Prescott, 19, a respiratory therapy student from Pacifica.

"I'd go. I'd fight for us," she said as her friends listened to her in amazement. "This is my country. I'd fight for it. I don't want Russia to take over."

However, her friend Lori Stables, an 18-year-old Daly City resident, wants to have nothing to do with women serving in the military.

Her response to women being drafted was an emphatic "forget it. They're physically capable but they're not able to see someone get shot."

Echoing her sentiments was Bob Pruett, 30, who served in the Navy for two years during the Vietnam War.

"I don't think women could handle shooting somebody," he said, also noting that some men are not emotionally able to kill someone during combat.

When a group of seven young men was approached and asked what they thought of President Carter's announcement that women also must register for the draft, not one of them supported the idea.

"They're too feminine. I'd rather have them stay at home," said "Slip" Dunham, 18, of Daly City. He also balked at men being required to register for the draft.

Electrical engineering student Cyrus Stutts, 19, of Daly City, also did not think that the female sex was able to withstand the rigors of war.

He said women should not fight in a war because they are "feminine. They are nice."

Five other male college students were asked what they thought of the women-and-the-draft issue and again, not one believed women should serve in the military.

Gerard Mitchell, 18, of Burlingame, got a big laugh from his male companions when he joked that women could join the service "as long as they're in the same foxhole with me."

He agreed with Mark Bendick, 18, of South San Francisco, who said that women are not physically capable of going off to war. He also worried about the long-term effect it would have on them.

"They wouldn't come out the same as they went in," he said. "They're going to be like men."

Student Body President Jimmy Smith, 23, said he supports equal rights for women but he draws the line at them being drafted.

"I associate a woman with motherhood and sistership," he said, and not with combat duty.

If he were in the service and saw a male friend get shot, that would be difficult to accept. And if he saw a women soldier killed?

"Psychologically I couldn't deal with it," he said.

Of the approximately 15 men interviewed, Nolan Apostle, 21, of Millbrae, was the only one who supported women being drafted.

"I don't see why the women can't experience the same thing as men. Women and men have the same types of feelings. They're both emotional."

Trustees vote to close one school

One of the seven high schools in the San Mateo Union High School District will be closed by September 1981.

That decision was made Thursday night by the district's trustees. The vote was 4-1.

Trustee Joseph Castelli opposed the plan.

The reasons for the decision are the same as they have been for other San Mateo County public school districts which have shut campuses: a shrinking enrollment and restricted funding.

In 1974-75, the district's enrollment stood at 11,718. This year, the enrollment is 10,531. By 1984-85, the enrollment is projected to be 9,190.

The anticipated student loss is 2,528 in 10 years.

According to Superintendent Dr. Austin Sellery, the dwindling supply of students is coupled with increasingly difficult fiscal times.

He told the trustees that between now and 1985, the district stands to run a deficit of about $1 million per year.

He said closing a school could save the district $679,000 the first year and $714,000 per year after that.

Sellery told the board members that the question is no longer if a school ought to be shut, "It's a question of when."

The majority of the board agreed that September 1981 is the target date.

It is anticipated that one of the district's four northern schools — Burlingame, Capuchino, Crestmoor or Mills — will be chosen for elimination.

A process will be established to both educate the public and to set criteria for choosing a school for closure.

Because the district's enrollment is dropping faster than officials had expected, it is likely that a second school may be closed in 1983-84 or beyond, Sellery said.

To save money in addition to school closure, the trustees also voted to pursue other avenues of cost-cutting, including:

- The sale or lease of all or part of a 57-acre school site in Foster City. To that end, a meeting between the trustees and the Foster City Council will be held at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 20 to begin talking about possible disposition of the property.
- The pairing of campuses.
- Other measures involving staff reorganization.

All of these measures came in response to a citizens committee report devoted to school closure.

That committee recommended that the trustees attempt several potential savings before closing a school.

But, according to Sellery's analysis, none of the committee's options would provide the district with the kind of money it needs to offset those coming deficits.

Castelli argued that the district has not taken a creative approach to declining enrollment.

He said the public schools ought to compete more vigorously for students now attending private and parochial schools.

He said the district might want to create a school devoted only to vocational-technical skills.

He added there may also be an increase in student numbers in the next 10 years.

He said a closed school would be a target for vandalism. And he pointed out that the district's central offices could be moved and those offices leased.

A determination on leasing unused classrooms remained confused Thursday.

The trustees worried that leasing portions of schools might hamper their future efforts to sell or lease an entire closed school.

At one point, President Donald Langendorf urged his fellow board members to close a school by September of this year.

"High school closure has been on the table here for 10 years. This is not a new issue," he said.

He added that other districts have been able to close a school with dispatch. So could this one, he said.

Animal Forum

By DR. DAVID R. BARNETT

Question: Is there any way to keep a dog young — or slow down the aging process? My Freda is 8 years old, but recently she seems to be slowing up a bit. I take hormone medication myself and thought maybe the same sort of therapy might help Freda. Do you recommend these kinds of pills for animals? She's very affectionate and I want her around for a long time because she's all I have now. V.G.

Answer: Geriatric vitamins and hormones are often helpful in older dogs, so ask your veterinarian to prescribe some for Freda. Unfortunately, we all tend to slow up a bit as we get older and there is nothing that will stop this aging process. We do have medications now that help prolong life much more effectively than when I started practice nearly 24 years ago, so Freda can probably look forward to several more productive years.

Rev. Nelson will be missed after 35 years

Perspective

By ARVILLE FINACOM

In a very few weeks, someone familiar to numerous San Bruno and Millbrae residents will no longer be dropping it to see patients at Peninsula Hospital, alerting local police to possible troublesome situations or consoling many whose loved ones lie quietly coffined in the local mortuary.

Rev. Norman E. Nelson retires March 9 after close to 35 years in the ministry, nearly 20 of them at Calvary Lutheran Church on Santa Lucia Avenue between San Bruno and Millbrae.

Nelson's years of ministry span a period in American church life beginning in World War II days when a guenuine religious and moral imperative led most people to acknowledge a need for God in their lives. It ends at a time when indifference to religion, at least to establishment ones, is high.

Norman Nelson's journey through the ministry parallels a similar journey by his confessional church, the Norwegian Lutheran Church of American, from parochialism to widespread divergence, not only in areas and style of ministry, but in an approach to ministry itself. As nelson puts it, "The church moved from provincialism to being a church for everyone."

Born March 7, 1918 in Holmen, Wis., and baptized in that small community's Lutheran Church, Norman Everett Nelson grew up in nearly West Salem, a midwesterner in tune with the farming style of the area. He crossed the Mississippi into neighboring Iowa to attend Luther College in Decorah, then ventured off to the big city, St. Paul, Minn., to attend Luther Seminary there.

In June 1944, he returned to west Salem and was ordained in his home church, Our Savior's. His first call was to a mission parish in Montana where he spent four and one half years. He returned to Wisconsin to work in another mission congregation for seven months.

Almost from the day he began, his ministry was shared by his wife, the former Evelyn Paulson of Beloit, Wis., who he married one week after he was ordained. During his time of American mission work, his church changed its name, becoming the Evangelical Lutheran Church in 1946.

So far, all Nelson's expeiences had been with the same kinds of farm-oriented people in communities where the Lutheran confession of Christianity was the dominant one. Then, in 1955, the Nelsons came West, first to serve a church in Bakersfield for five years, then to arrive at Calvary locally. Perhaps the greatest adjustment they faced was to find that the Lutheran church in these California communities was only one of many, "a small part of the total picture of Christianity."

In Bakersfield the Nelsons found fellowship with those of other denominations, including Methodist minister Dick Hart, who currently serves Millbrae Community Methodist Church. In Bakersfield also, the Nelsons founf far fewer people involved actively in church work. Confrontation for the first time with the unchurched attitude which has characterized the West in the years since World War II did not unduly discourage the Nelsons.

"I've always felt a sense of worth in my vocation," Nelson says. "I serve people and that gives me the greatest kind of satisfaction one can have." The implication is that numbers don't really matter.

Increasingly, Nelson sees ministry moving from what might once have been called "spiritual exercises" towards work with the "whole person." Clgyman have entre' into the community that mental health professionals envy.

"A priest or a pastor can visit anywhere," says Nelson. "I can go around riging doorbells or chat with people on the street or sitting at a lunch counter and no one thinks anything of it."

He ramarks that his expeiences have often been unique. People unable or unwilling to visit anyone else will talk to him. He's "on call" in a way few doctors, lawyers or therapists are. His phone rings often late at night. Sometimes it is a member of his congregation. Often it's a stranger who has "found him in the phone book."

He has soothed domestic arguments, counseled alcoholics and drug-high individuals and helped people "talk through" crises. Dealing with drunks, domestic abuse situations and threats of physical violence to others has never fazed Nelson. "I've never felt really threatened," he says, although some of the experiences he recounts seem, on reflection, quite harrowing.

Nelson sees a philosophic change in the direction of ministry from he time of his ordination to the present. "Today," he says, "There's more time spent in one-to-one counseling. Not only is there added stress and pressure on people, the times, encourage them to share."

Marital problems, dealing with errant children, coping with illness, supporting elderly relatives, meeting death, simply moving from day to day, are all areas dealt with by Nelson who estimates he spends 60 to 70 hours a week working with people.

"My idea of ministry," he says, "is to be there in those times of crises. I believe that Scripture does have something to give to people that makes such situations tolerable, sometimes even beneficial."

He and longtime colleague, Rev. Clyde Grimstvedt, former pastor of Hope Lutheran Church in San Mateo, agree that ministry is sharing what the Word of God has to say. This sharing, in and of itself, is essential to christian counseling.

Nelson says his counseling technique is based on building rapport with people by getting to know them informally. He considers his ministerial strengthh is in counseling, although many of his parishioners would say it is in preaching.

Nelson quickly quotes Dr. Alvin Rogness, president emeritus of Luther Seminary, who says, "The pulput is still the chief plce fo counseling." He adds, however, that preaching for him "has never come easy." He quips, paraphrasing the Apostle Paul, "Although it's not a cross that I bear, it is a thorn in the flesh."

He admits he won't miss preaching nor the administrivia that has confronted him in each parish. But he will miss the people, especially his day to day contact with them in the community.

One member of Calvary Congregation said recently, "Pastors can be replaced, but good

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

Since tomorrow is Valentine Day, why not bake a batch of cookies for your Valentine and for the smaller Valentines in your family?

These delicious cookies, cut into heart shapes, will brighten the day and also brighten lunch boxes, as the recipe makes a generous amount.

It's a good idea to start mixing the dough in the morning as the dough has to chill for easier handling. If you don't have a heart shaped cookie cutter, just cut a heart out of a cardboard to use as a pattern.

SWEETHEART COOKIES

1 cup shorterning
1 cups all-purpose flour
1½ cups sugar
2 teaspoons soda
½ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons milk
2 eggs
½ teaspoon almond extract

Sift the four cups flour, one and one-half cups sugar, two teaspoons soda, and half teaspoon salt into a large mixing bowl. Cut the one cup shortening into flour mixture with a pastry blender or knives until the consistency of small peas. Combine the six tablespoons milk, with the two eggs and half teaspoon almond extract, beat lightly with a fork and pour into flour mixture. Mix well. Place in refrigerator and chill about 2 hours.

Heat oven to 350-degrees. On lightly floured board, roll out about one-third of the dough at a time, keeping the rest in the refrigerator. Roll the cookies 1/8 to 1/4 inch thick. Cut into heart shapes.

Place cookies on lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake 8 to 10 minutes. Frost with red sugar frosting. Makes approximately 6 dozen cookies.

SUGAR FROSTING

2 tablespoons cream or evaporated milk
1 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
teaspoon vanilla
Red food coloring

Heat the two teaspoons cream and add to he one and one-third cups confetioners' sugar, mix in the half teaspoon vanilla and add enough red food coloring to give the frosting a rosy red color. Spread on baked cookies.

For "crackle-top" cookies, spread frosting on hot, partially baked cookies about 4 minutes before they come from the oven.

Note: This recipe can easily be halved.

THE DIET CORNER

By ELISE GENDAR

Acupuncture CAN help you diet!

Sure, 10 needles right through the lips and you may never eat again.

Drastic, you say? Well, maybe. So no one says you have to try it — or anything.

Well, kidding aside, you know who you are — you should-be losers. So why not pull yourself together and try to make less of yourself. Start off by exercising your rights to sweetly satisfying bon-bons like these opera creams:

OPERA CREAMS

1 pkg. (qt. size) non-fat dry milk
½ teaspoon imitation butter extract
½ teaspoon rum extract
¼ teaspoon vanilla
sugar substitute to taste

Add water and beat until consistency of thick icing. (I can't tell you the amount — it varies.) Drop by teaspoons on aluminum foil, and freeze. About five opera creams equal a cup of milk. Sweet, rich and yummy.

Several Serramonte seniors have graduated mid-year and several others have left the campus to attend night school courses or obtain credits at Skyline Junior College.

Congratulations to Liz McNeil. Liz has been accepted into the California All-State Honor Band.

She was chosen to be one of the 270 students selected from over 750 applicants through a taped audition. She attended a three-day convention last week in Stockton and then participated in a concert on Sunday. Liz has been playing alto clarinte for three and one-half years and also has been chosen for District Honor Band the past two years.

Serramonte will hold a Valentine Day Dance this Friday — so put it down on your calendar and don't forget to come!

The Dance will feature Dr. Funk as the D.J. Tickets will be on sale at the cashier's office at lunch, and will cost $2.50 in advance and $3 at the door. The dance will be from 8-11 p.m.

All help is appreciated for the dance and those Juniors interested in helping out should go to the meeting that Friday at noon in Room 230.

The Class of 1982 is selling Flower Candy GRAMS. Contained in each gram is a flower and a box of valentine candy. That's only 50 cents for two quality items. There are only 280 grams available for sale so everyone wishing to order one has to rush into buy one. The Grams are going to be delivered on Valentine's Day during first period.

Last Friday was rally schedule, as they held a basketball rally. Serramonte played Jefferson that day.

Serramonte will hold a dance on April 18. The sophomores and the freshmen will be sponsoring this dance which will also featue Dr. Funk. Soft drinks will be sold at the dance and tickets will sell for $2.50 in advance and 13 at the door. The dance will last from 8-11.

For more information you can contact either Gina Hom or Gina Lim.

The California Junior Statesmen held a conference on Global Unrest. Senator S. I. Hayakawa, member of U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was the keynote speaker.

The soccer team at Serramonte has finished its season. Those who made All-League include Moni Tialavea and Chico Arcaya, All-League first Team Varsity; Erick De Leon, Robert Lara, and John Owens, first team All-League Junior Varsity; Ken Abdalla and Pat Lindstrom second team All-League Junior Vrsity.

Serramonte baseball signups were last Wednesday in the gym.

Gymnastics at Serramonte is starting to meet every week Monday-Thursday starting at 3 p.m.

Track practice also started up last Wednesday.

The C.S.F. (California Scholarship Federation) went to Berkeley last Thursday on a field trip. Mr. Shurgin, C.S.F. advisor, supervised the trip. The attending students from Serramonte were given a guided tour of the campus.

The Oriental club organized another volleyball game durng lunch last week in the main gum.

The Model U.N. Club met last week to discuss debates, conventions and fund raisers.

Spring semester junior and senior class officers recently were elected.

The new officers for the senior class are Mike Guingona (president), Christy Dowd (vice president), Shirley Edwards (secretary) and Chris Browne (treasurer).

The new junior class officers are Jan Galustian (president), Sanya Hill (vice president), Mary Ann Faue (secretary) and Dianne Carroll (treasurer).

The date of the annual club day at Westmoor is today. All of the various clubs at Westmoor will participate in this event by displaying information, mostly visual, which include posters, dances and possibly scenes from a play.

Each club will have a spokesperson who will help to explain what their club is about and recruit new members.

Students of Westmoor once again demonstrate their interest and concern for the community by participation in a program that cares for the need of the elderly, the Youth Elderly Service.

The main emphasis in the YES club is placed on visiting convalescent homes and developing a personal relationship with an older person. The youth try to relieve the loneliness, stimulate physical and mental health while preventing any further regression, try to make the most of the abilities the older person still has and to restore faith.

These aims and services of the YES club are achieved through hard work. Before a youth visits a convalescent home, he must go through workshops and discussions to prepare him.

Reading aloud from books, writing for those who are unable to write, playing games, assisting with grooming, and taking the elderly for walks are just some of the simpler duties of the YES members. The youth try to encourage the older person to get involved and take an interest in life.

Students wishing to join this club at Westmoor, or who wish to gain information about how they may help the elderly should contact Mr. Vaionchi at Westmoor.

Today dhere will be a wrestling tournament at Westmoor between Westmoor and Jefferson. Also on that day Oceana and Westmoor battle in basketball as the varsity basketball teams will play at Westmoor, and the girl's teams will play at Oceana.

Friday, Feb. 15, Jefferson and Westmoor compete in more exciting games of basketball, as the varsity teams play at Westmoor at 6 p.m., and the girl's teams will play at Jefferson.

VALENTINE'S DAY DINING GUIDE

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD ★ JOHNSON

Romano's dinner romantic idea

If you're like so many who like a little salad with your spaghetti, pizza or other pasta, or if you happen to like salad a lot, then be sure to scan the list of super salads on the menu at ROMANO'S, an intimate Old-World-style restaurant/lounge in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, open seven days from 4 p.m. This is a Valentine's Day dinner idea, and MAMMA ENRICKETTA, the mother of handsome ENRICO ROMANO, is a real sweetheart ... One of the Bay Area's most popular places for Valentine's Day dinner is ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB in San Francisco's glittering Geary Street "Theater Row." An elegant setting, superb prime ribs and continental fare, and attentive service combine for an unforgettable dining experience. You might find your favorite star enjoying dinner at the next table ... To show appreciation to regular readers of "Bright Lights," whose valued patronage he says has been a big factor in the success of THE CYPRESS HOUSE in Half Moon Bay, HAEKUN CHOI offers a special "Bright Lights" dinner on Wednesday and Thursday for only $5.25. Served from 5 to 10 p.m., the dinner includes soup or Salad Bar, entree of Pacific Red Snapper, potatoes, vegetables and complimentary glass of wine (bring the ad from today's "Bright Lights" section).

Phil Lehr's for pre-theater dining

For memorable pre-theater dining at PHIL LEHR'S Pay-By-Ounce Steakery, on the lower level of the S.F. Hilton Tower, Phil recommends his Cling Peach Beef Wellington, a house specialty. It's a tender filet mignon that's broiled to juicy perfection, then topped with a California Cling Peach half and baked in a puff pastry shell ... A strolling guitarist adds romantic flavor to dining at LA PINATA Mexican restaurant in downtown Burlingame. Puerta Vallarta (curacao blended with sweet juices) and Acapulco Gold (a blend of rum, mango juice and creme de banana) are exotic drinks that will stimulate conversations ... By popular demand, ALFREDO'S will continue to serve their "nightly dinner specials" at a special low price. A choice of New York Steak, Half Roast Chicken or Prime Rib is served with minestrone soup or Salad Bar, French bread, and baked potato or spaghetti for only $4.95 seven nights a week from 4 to 10 p.m. ... A special steak combo at a low price has created such a sensational response at RON'S STEAK HOUSE in Millbrae that they are continuing the offer. Now is your chance to order their popular Char-Broil Steak, with potatoes and full Salad Bar, for only $3.69. Open seven days a week from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Vince's is special in hearts of many

Since the menu at VINCE'S Italian and Seafood restaurant offers a vast range of selections and side orders, you can put together just about any kind of personalized lunch or dinner you have in mind. By ordering separately or in combination, you can pick and choose as you please. There is also an adjacent Fresh Fish Depot for take-home service of fresh seafood and related items. This is a special place in the hearts of many valentines ... LEHR'S GREENHOUSE in San Francisco, where you dine in a beautiful garden in full bloom, rivals Fisherman's Wharf as a mecca for seafood lovers. Fresh-caught fish is featured at both luncheon and dinner — perch, red snapper, petrale sole, salmon — whatever is in season. Be sure to try their fresh poached salmon, topped with Hollandaise sauce and sprinkled with shrimp ... Fame for excellence of cuisine and elegance of decor of DAL BAFFO European restaurant in Menlo Park ranges far and wide. This was evidenced by glowing praise from a celebrity guest on one of the major radio talk shows the other early a.m. in answer to query from the interviewer as to recommendation of an outstanding restaurant on the Peninsula. Owner/chef VINCENZO LO GRASSO and his gracious wife/manager "CATHY" may be getting reservations from as far away as Alaska.

Take your "sweetie" to Leaning Tower

Burgundy decor tones, immaculate table linen, sparkling glassware and silver enhanced by flowers at the tables is matched by savory Italian cuisine, Tuscany style, at THE LEANING TOWER restaurant in South San Francisco. For special dinner or afternoon meetings, the Tuscany Room is available for groups up to 60 persons. The V.I.P. Room accommodates up to 16 guests for private parties. A great place to take your "sweetie" on Valentine's Day ... Do you suppose TILLIE SCHOLTZ is so busy cooking up all those authentic German dishes at her TILLIE'S 'LIL' FRANKFURT restaurant in Moss Beach that she hasn't had time to read about inflation? Otherwise, how else could it be that she is still serving her all-you-can-eat family-style dinners on Wednesday nights for only $4.29 (includes soup, salad, entree, dessert and complimentary glass of wine) ... "Weekend Brunch" at THE GREENHOUSE restaurant at Delaware Station in San Mateo is proving very popular. This smart new spot with its inviting interior design and profusion of indoor plants serves brunch on both Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., and there are two optional ways to go — the Special Brunch ($5.95) or the "Have-It-Your-Way" Brunch (add $1.50 to a choice of any breakfast menu item, except Cheese Puff or Sausalitan)... Handsome Jim Sniadecki, owner of Scotty Campbell's restaurant, is going all-out in the spirit of Cupid's Day to delight the hearts and palates of diners on Valentine's Day ... One of the reasons why THE MOONRAKER, an elegant continental penthouse restaurant overlooking the Pacific Ocean at Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, is chosen by so many for birthdays, anniversaries and other special occasions is their gourmet menu. This superb restaurant is one of three (NICK's and CAPTAIN CHARLES) in the dining/resort/entertainment complex owned and operated by NICK and LORRAINE GUST and son CHUCK. Their comfortable SEA BREEZE MOTEL is also surfside.

A gloomy economic forecast seen

By KAREN PETTERSON
Post Staff Writer

Gold prices of $1,000 an ounce, 18 percent interest rates on personal loans and an inflation rate that could reach 20 percent.

Those are among the factors which will amount to "economic chaos" during 1980, according to the gloomy predictions of Kenneth Kidwell, chairman of the board of San Carlos-based Eureka Federal Savings.

Kidwell, speaking Wednesday to the Chamber of Commerce in that city, said the recession prophesied for 1979 was "paper talk" but a serious recession is a very real possibility during the coming months.

The "chaos" will probably begin around May or June of this year, Kidwell predicted.

"Everyone has overextended themselves," he said. "The people have no money, the banks even less, and the mutual insurance companies are out of capital."

A major cause of recent inflation — the drastic increase of OPEC oil prices — should level off, Kidwell said.

However, he warned, the possibility of a war in the Mideast is a very real one.

"I predict that the Soviet Union will move into Iran," he said, "at the invitation of Khomeini. Russia wants to control the Iranian oil fields."

The war we may see in 1980 will not be nuclear, according to Kidwell.

"It will be a conflict as we have seen in Vietnam or Korea," he said. "Some may call it a 'skirmish' or 'confrontation' — but whenever you have young men shooting at each other, that's war."

On the home front, food prices will rise at least 12 percent, personal savings will drop to one-half of what they were in 1979, gold prices will "drop to $600 an ounce, then soar to $1,000 an ounce," according to Kidwell, and silver should jump to $65 an ounce.

"We need new leadership if this country is to survive," he said, noting that the elections of 1980 could affect the economic picture.

"If Carter is re-elected, and I believe he will be, you can expect to see a 20 percent inflation rate," Kidwell said.

A conservative Republican who thinks Ronald Reagan is "on the liberal side," Kidwell said he would like to see Philip Crane as president.

However, he said, Carter has the best chance because "Khomeini is making him a martyr. He isn't doing anything, but he looks good doing it."

The decreasing value of the American dollar is caused in part, Kidwell believes, by the poor political leadership in the country.

"We don't have any leadership right now, and the rest of the world is responding to that. The dollar could stay about where it is, or it could drop 25 percent below its current value," he said.

California will not be hit as hard by the coming recession as will the rest of the country, according to Kidwell.

The state should see a 2 percent growth in its economy, spurred on by the aerospace industry and development of commercial and industrial property.

Housing will be off, with about 200,000 new starts — "about a quarter of what is needed," Kidwell said.

However, he predicted, when the "economic chaos" hits, there will be a surplus of housing because "we will see an exodus from California" as people flock to look for jobs elsewhere. This will mean a devaluation of real estate prices.

Among Kidwell's other predictions:

- A GNP of $2.5 trillion, up 9 percent from 1979.
- Actual income, after taxes and inflation, up less than 2 percent.
- A national debt of $900 billion.
- A 13 percent increase in defense spending.
- A $24 billion tax cut, coupled with an $8 billion increase in Social Security.
- Automobile sales down 4.8 percent for domestic models and 8.7 percent for foreign.
- A prime rate that will reach 17 percent, then dip back to 12 percent preceding the November election.
- Mortgage rates of up to 14.5 percent.
- An inflation rate of 13 to 15 percent, with the possibility of it reaching 20 percent.

"1980 could be a frightening year," Kidwell concluded, advising people to "stay as liquid as you can."

Suspect arraigned

Kenneth Earl Van Brunt, arrested early Sunday in the stabbing death of Glenn Angerame in a San Bruno apartment, was arraigned on a murder charge Monday in Northern District Municipal Court, with bail set at $100,000.

Angerame, 33, died at Peninsula Hospital about an hour after being stabbed once in the abdomen, according to Police Sgt. Robert Porras, who said Angerame lost consciousness immediately after the stabbing and never made a statement.

Van Brunt, 41, had gone to the apartment of Sharon Bewley at 241 San Anselmo Ave. to visit Mrs. Bewley's daughter, Tammy, 18, and found three persons already there, Porras said.

These three, investigation revealed, had been given permission by Sharon Bewley to change the locks on the apartment to prevent its being used by others. Sharon Bewley has been in jail in Redwood City on a probation violation, Porras said.

Angerame and two other persons arrived shortly afterward, reportedly to help with changing of the locks, and an argument broke out between Angerame and Van Brunt over whether the locks should be changed without notifying the landlord, according to Porras.

A knife was flashed but the fight was broken up temporarily, police said they were told.

Van Brunt reportedly was seen going to a rear bedroom, but returned, and Angerame was stabbed as Van Brunt was exiting the building, Porras said. The weapon used was a Bowie knife, Porras said.

He said Van Brunt apparently was an acquaintance of the apartment resident and that there was no evidence to substantiate any involvement in drugs.

Van Brunt, 125 San Marco Ave., San Bruno, was arrested at 1 a.m. Sunday at a location police wouldn't divulge. Officers were able to find Van Brunt because he is known to them, it was reported.
